The panel discussion aims to analyze through an economic perspective the complex relationship between peace, resources and the environment. Resource availability and climate dynamics are pivotal elements both in the emergence of conflict and in fostering periods of geopolitical and economic prosperity. Understanding how these factors influence and support the continuation of peace or can destabilize it is critical in order to be able to devise an ethical and effective development model.

The event will be held in English in a hybrid mode and will be streamed on the YouTube DEM-Unibs Channel

The attendance onsite and online is free of charge.
